Sun Ranch - A Collaboration of Cool

34 guests | 5 rooms + 6 two-bedroom barns

Straight from the pages of Vogue, Sun Ranch is a luxurious escape set on 55 acres in the Byron Bay hinterland. This retreat exudes an effortless, I'm-with-the-band style of cool, perfect for groups seeking some escapism.

At its heart lies The Rambler Longhouse, a five-room luxury guest house, alongside six chic two-bedroom barns. Inspired by '70s California Ranch and Spanish design, the estate blends bohemian vibes with no-expense-spared luxury. Former fashion designer Jamie Blakey and travel blogger Julia Ashwood have curated every corner - from the Cowboy Bar to the "sexy as hell sunken lounge area" aptly named, The Lair - to luscious perfection.

Hosting up to 34 guests, Sun Ranch features The Pool Club, a sprawling 25-metre oasis pool carved from basalt stone with hinterland views, a firepit, and an outdoor dining area with an Argentinian BBQ. Pool suites open directly onto the pool, while the off-grid barns accommodate families (and dogs!) with king-sized beds and luxe French linen. Guests enjoy hot muffins delivered each morning and a full ranch breakfast. Eco-friendly touches like rainwater harvesting and solar power also highlight the estate's commitment to sustainability.

Plenty of activities are also on offer - from complimentary yoga to a friendly match at The Badminton Club. There're group horseback tours, cacao ceremonies and sound healing, to in-room massages. Or simply relax in the woodfired floating sauna. Dubbed the "hotel of good times," Sun Ranch is the spot to gather your crew for an immersive and indulgent escape.
